W. H. TRIMBLE was arrested yesterday morning on a warrant sworn out by J. J. Reese, of Covington, his former partner, on the charge of stealing from his store, on Third street near Main, four thousand cigars, valued at $60. In the Police Court this morning his case was continued to March 3d. Trimble and Reese were formerly in partnership in the cigar trade. They disagreed, and the partnership was dissolved by mutual consent, each partner taking half of the stock of cigars on hand, and stopping the business. Mr. Reese, who lives in Newport, stored his cigars, about three months ago, in an upper room of a building on Third street near Main. He claims to have lost $4,000 of his stock, and that Trimble either stole them or was accessory to the theft. The cigars have been unstamped, and Reese claims that Trimble having no cigars of his own, had purchased stamps, or gave an order for their purchase, to be used on the 4,000 stolen. A warrant was issued for Trimble's arrest ten days ago, but it was not until yesterday that his arrest could be effected.

Capt. J. H. Farrell.

The Captains and Lieutenants of the police force met at the office of the Chief of Police yesterday and adopted the following resolutions on the death of Capt. Farrell.

"WHEREAS, the officers and members of the Cincinnati Police Force have learned, with the deepest regret, the death of John H. H. Farrell, late a Captain of this force.

"Resolved, That by this dispensation of Providence the city and Police Department has lost an efficient, conscientious and fearless officer, and a genial and warm-hearted gentleman; one who, by his officer-like deportment, has bound us by the strongest ties to his memory; one whose remembrance will ever be cherished by his good deeds, whose perfect character as a husband, citizen and officer we shall always endeavor to emulate."

"Resolved, That the various Station-houses and the office of the Superintendent of Police be draped in mourning for the term of thirty days. But further."

"Resolved, That, as a further tribute of respect to his memory, a copy of these resolutions be framed and hung in the office of the Police Department and Seventh District Station-house, and that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, and that an invitation be and is hereby extended to the officers and members of the Covington and Newport Police Departments to join with us in the funeral obsequies."

At 9:15 the officers and patrolmen of Bremen, Oliver, Third, Ninth and Hammond-street Station-houses, followed by the Hiernian Society and headed by two bands of music, proceeded from Court and Sycamore streets, where they all met in a body, to the house of the deceased, on Concord and Morgan streets, Walnut Hills. Here they were joined by the Walnut Hills Station-house force, and after the usual ceremonies had been performed at the house the body was escorted to St. Xavier's Church, where the funeral services were held. Rev. Boes, S. J., read the funeral mass, and at the end delivered a short sermon treating on the subject of the mortality and end of man. The church was crowded with the many friends and relatives of the deceased. From here the funeral train, composed of a large number of carriages, headed by the officers and the Hiernian Society, proceeded to St. Joseph's Cemetery, on the Warsaw pike, where the body was deposited with the usual ceremonies. Altogether the funeral was one of the largest ever held in this city, and bespoke a great and most deserving tribute of respect and honor to the deceased.

Gilmore's Band.

To-morrow evening Gilmore returns to us for another performance with his immense organization. The concert is to be given at Pike's and the proceeds are to be given to St. Patrick's Church in Cumminsville.

The programme has been selected with great care, and is, as will be seen, an extensive and excellent one. It is as follows: Overture, "Oberon," Weber, Gilmore's Band; Solo for Saxophone, Air and Variation, Bellini, Mr. E. A. Leiber; Fantasia, "Lehenger," Wagner, Gilmore's Band; Air and Variations for Voice, Proch (by special request), Miss Emma C. Thursty; Grand Selection, "Reminiscences," Meyerbeer, Gilmore's Band; Overture, "William Tell," Rossini, Introduction by the Saxophones, Gilmore's Band; Solo for Cornet, "Tantum Ergo," Mercadante, Mr. M. Arbuckle; Fackeltanz No. 3 (O Minor), Meyerbeer, Gilmore's Band; Song, "My mother bids me bid my hair," Haydn, Miss Emma C. Thursty; March, "Salute to New York," Gilmore, Gilmore's Band. Conductor, P. S. Gilmore.

An Actress in the Pulpit.

The Hedding Methodist Episcopal Church in Montgomery street, Jersey City, was thronged last evening with a congregation who listened to Mrs. Margaret E. Lowery, the Evangelist. The interest was increased and curiosity excited by the announcement that Mrs. Lowery was a retired actress. She certainly had as little of the generally accepted appearance of an actress as was possible as she sat in one of the cushioned pulpits by the side of Rev. Mr. Wall, the pastor of the church. She was clad in severe black, relieved at the throat by a bit of lace. Her black hair was dressed with simplicity, and surmounted by a nondescript black bonnet, with dangling ribbons. Her face was pale, as if the glare of the foot lights had faded all color from it. Her features were strongly marked and almost plain, while beneath dark eyebrows a gray eye looked at the congregation without flinching.

After the pastor had baptized half a score of new-made Christians, for Mrs. Lowery had preached in the church a week or more, the actress arose, and, in a clear, strong voice, without a particle of embarrassment, announced her text: "Because He hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom He hath ordained."

Her voice was hoarse, as though wearied by much speaking; her accent betrayed her Scotch ancestry, and her verbs and nouns did not always agree, but she was evidently in earnest. Her words came without an effort. She was strong in manner and from first to last held the great audience.

The sermon was delivered entirely extemporaneously, and was composed of exhortation and illustration. When exhorting her hearers to flee from the wrath to come—when painting the terrors of that "Day of Wrath," and the danger of putting off the hour of repentance, her voice rose and fell in the peculiar sing-song which most women speakers adopt. When relating anecdotes, with which her sermon was crowded, her manner was natural, and sometimes the actress unconsciously showed forth. Her gestures were forcible and graceful for the most part. After a short sermon she invited those who wished to become Christians to come to the altar, and stepping from the pulpit and going into the aisles, she asked sinners to come to Jesus. Looking carefully over her audience she singled out some promising faces, and began her appeal in a low, earnest voice, while the brethren within the altar sang and prayed. Thus going from seat to seat, appealing to one, and going with another, praying with a third, she spoke personally with very many. Suddenly stopping, she cried in clear tones, "There are men in this house who are being hindered from coming forward by the influence of friends; when these men stand before the altar, let us have their hands lifted, removing all fingers at you, and cry, 'But for thee I might have been saved.' You can not answer then, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' You are your brother's keeper."

Again she shouted, "There are men here weeping over their sins, and who yet won't come forward. Unless you repent those tears will turn to red-hot coals of fire to burn into your souls through a never-ending eternity."

She spoke like one in authority, and seemed a born leader. It did not seem an unwomanly thing for her to thrust forth, and she so directed the meeting that many influenced by her words arose for prayer or knelt tearfully at the altar.

After the long service was ended Mrs. Lowery said to the reporter:

"Oh, I am well known. I was for twenty years an actress in legitimate drama. I was always a church-goer, as four-fifths of the people on the stage are. Many of them are members of the church—Episcopal or Catholic. I couldn't be a member of the church I wanted to belong to and be an actress. A year ago last September, while playing in Ford's Opera House in Baltimore, I decided to leave the stage. Mr. Ford offered me $75 a month for a year, or $100 a month for six months; but I saw my duty clearly. I left and began preparing for preaching. About a year ago I was licensed to preach, and have been preaching since.—N. Y. Sun.

A young man charged with being lazy was asked if he took it from his father. "I think not," was his reply, "father's got all the laziness he ever had."

"What's geography, Bill?" "It's a tell-in' of forin lands that we know notin' about by cute chaps that's never seen 'em." Bill got a government situation.

A wide awake minister, who found his congregation going to sleep before he had fairly commenced, suddenly exclaimed: "Brethren this ain't fair. Wait till I get along, and then, if I ain't worth listening to, go to sleep; but don't before I commence. Give a man a chance."

"O, Jimmy, Jimmy," said a member of a Woman's Rights Association, bending over the cradle of her sleeping babe, "Why weren't you born a girl, Jimmy. It almost breaks your mother's heart to think that you must grow up a great, nasty, noisy boy, and smell of shoe leather."

A Kansas farmer purchased a revolver for his wife, and insisted on her practicing so that she could defend her house in case of his absence. After the bullet was dug out of his leg, and the cow buried, he said he guessed she'd better shoot with an ax.

"And now, Mrs. Sullivan," said the council, "will you be kind enough to tell the jury whether your husband was in the habit of striking you with impunity?" "Why what sir?" "With impunity?" "He wuz, sir, now and then, but he struck me oftener wid his fist."

Woman does a great deal to discourage lofty sentiments of patriotism. When a man is leaning over the back fence telling a neighbor how he would shed his last drop of blood for suffraging Louisiana, it disturbs him to have his wife yell from the kitchen: "Look at here! are you coming with that bucket of water, or shall I come out and see to you?"

"Have you any eggs?" inquired a peaceful looking old man as he leaned over the counter of a hardware store, yesterday. "No, sir—this is a hardware store; we keep no eggs, sir, etc., and, answered the clerk. "Well, I did want some eggs," slowly drawled the man, "but I ain't particular, and you may give me a pound of nails."

Down East there resides a certain, M. D. One very cold night he was aroused from his slumber by a very loud knocking at his door. After some hesitation, he went to the window, and asked, "Who's there?" "A friend," was the answer. "What do you want?" "Want to stay all night." "Stay there, then," was the benevolent reply.
